

U.S. Role in the World - Ballot

Part I: Ranking the Four Futures: Rank the statements below from 1 to 4, assigning 1 to the statement with which you most agree and 4 to the statement with which you least agree.

___ FUTURE 1: LEAD THE WORLD TO DEMOCRACY The United States is the most powerful nation in the world. The world depends on us to maintain peace and order and to support liberal democratic principles. Today's international system was built around American ideals and power. Neither collective security nor the United Nations can be counted on to deal with the threats to this system. We must devote the necessary resources to build an international moral order and a vigorous international economy grounded in American political and economic principles and we must protect this international system from any threats, even if pressuring other governments to adopt American democratic principles may spark international criticism that the United States is ushering in a "Pax Americana."

___ FUTURE 2: PROTECT U.S. GLOBAL INTERESTS We live in a dangerously unstable world. U.S. foreign policy must strive for order and security. International terrorism, chaos in the Middle East, rising poverty in the developing world, and global economic competition have created an international minefield for U.S. leaders. We need to focus our energies on protecting our own security, cultivating our key trade relationships, ensuring our access to crucial raw materials, and stopping the spread of nuclear weapons to unfriendly nations or to terrorist networks. We must be selective in our involvement in international affairs but we must be prepared to protect ourselves—at home and abroad—against any threats to our security and prosperity, even if this policy may breed resentment and lead to an angry backlash against us.

___ FUTURE 3: BUILD A MORE COOPERATIVE WORLD We live today in an interdependent and interconnected world. We cannot stand alone. National boundaries can no longer halt the spread of AIDS, international drug trafficking, terrorism, and other global scourges. We must take the initiative to bring the nations of the world together and play a leadership role in strengthening the UN's role in maintaining international security and responding to other global problems such as environmental pollution, financial crises, refugees, and AIDS. We must be willing to give up a portion of our independent authority, or sovereignty, to the UN and offer our military, intelligence, and economic support to UN-led initiatives, even if this may limit our ability to use military force unilaterally outside of North America.

___ FUTURE 4: PROTECT THE U.S. HOMELAND The attacks of September 11, 2001 have made us feel a vulnerability not felt in more than fifty years. We have spent hundreds of billions of dollars a year defending our allies in Western Europe and East Asia and distributed tens of billions more in foreign aid to countries throughout the developing world. These high-profile foreign policy programs have only bred resentment against us and made us enemies. It is time to sharply scale back our foreign involvement and turn our attention to the real threats facing Americans: a sagging economy, decaying schools, a shaky health care system, and inadequate resources to protect against terrorism, even if this may upset the worldwide balance of power and cause insecure countries to seek nuclear, biological, and chemical weapons.

Part II: What most concerns you? What do you consider the most important international challenges facing the United States over the next ten years? Please check only three.

- ___ 1. A clash of ideologies and political values will fuel conflict and instability in the world.
- ___ 2. The gulf between the developed and developing worlds will widen, making it increasingly difficult to address common problems.
- ___ 3. Increasing immigration will worsen strains in our society.
- ___ 4. U.S. jobs will be lost to other countries.
- ___ 5. Loose border controls will threaten our security.
- ___ 6. The United States will act unilaterally and the international community will turn against us.
- ___ 7. Nuclear, biological, and chemical weapons will proliferate and end up in the hands of terrorists.
- ___ 8. The United States will drain its resources trying to solve other countries' problems.
- ___ 9. The United States will lose access to oil and other key resources abroad.
- ___ 10. U.S. troops will get bogged down in conflicts abroad.
- ___ 11. Damage to the global environment will become irreparable.
- ___ 12. More Americans will die at the hands of terrorists.
- ___ 13. Participation in international organizations will force the U.S. to follow costly or risky policies.

Part III: What beliefs drive your thinking? Rate each of the statements below according to your personal beliefs:

1 = Strongly Support
2 = Support

3 = Oppose
4 = Strongly Oppose

5 = Undecided

- In today's interconnected world, many serious problems can be addressed only through international cooperation.
- We will always have to compete with the world's other nations for power.
- Any nation acting alone has neither the moral authority nor the capacity to right the world's wrongs.
- The United States should not do business with countries that grossly abuse the human rights of their citizens.
- Our resources should be focused on addressing poverty, crime, and budget deficits at home.
- We have no right to decide on our own to pressure another country to behave in a certain way.
- The greatest threat to our civil liberties comes from the limits we put on ourselves because of our fear of others.
- Using our economic and military power around the world creates more enemies than friends.
- Trying to make deep changes in the way the world works is naive and dangerous.
- As Americans, we have a responsibility to spread democracy around the world.
- Free trade and open economies are the best way to foster economic growth at home and around the world.

Part IV: What should we do? Rate each of the statements below according to your beliefs:

1 = Strongly Support; 2 = Support; 3 = Oppose; 4 = Strongly Oppose; 5 = Undecided

- The United States should spend what is necessary to remain a military superpower, even if this means having less domestic spending, larger deficits, or higher taxes than we would like.
- The United States should support broadening the mandate of the UN and other international organizations, even if this means we are bound by the decisions of this community of nations and cannot act unilaterally except to defend our homeland.
- The United States should use military force to protect access to oil and other important raw materials, even if this places us in opposition to our traditional allies and the broader international community.
- The United States should commit itself to the elimination of nuclear weapons, even if this means that we will need to rethink our defense strategy.
- The United States should impose trade sanctions on countries that threaten their neighbors with aggression or contribute to the proliferation of nuclear weapons, even if such sanctions harm U.S. trade relations.
- The United States should increase financial aid to countries where poverty and despair are creating the breeding grounds of discontent, even if money needs to be diverted from domestic programs.
- The United States should help negotiate strict international standards to address global warming and other environmental threats, even if compliance forces us to pay more for cars, gasoline, and other products that contribute to pollution.
- The United States should accept fewer immigrants, in addition to cracking down on illegal immigration, even if this deprives the American work force of the talent and ambitions of newcomers and fuels anti-American sentiment abroad.
- The United States should use its military – alone if necessary – to stop gross human rights violations, even if this may isolate us from our traditional allies or the broader international community.
